

Dear Ed and team,

An agency that wins Make Partner of the Year while growing every quarter for three years has one bottleneck: builders who can ship client systems that work on the agreed date — and still work a month later. That's the job I've been doing.

At Manny Hall and Associate I deliver AI and automation systems for SaaS and service-based SMB clients at agency pace: AI agents and workflow automations in n8n, Zapier, and Airtable with Claude AI, plus custom API calls and JavaScript/TypeScript scripting against CRMs like Salesforce, HubSpot, and Zoho. The results are the kind your case studies lead with — lead pipelines responding 30–60% faster, client teams saving 10–25+ hours a week on document generation and reporting.

The part I'd highlight for an agency: I validate data flows and test systems before handoff, and every build ships with documented workflow logic and configurations, so clients adopt what we deliver instead of quietly abandoning it. Daily standups and live collaboration suit how I work, and my hours overlap comfortably with US teams.

I'd be glad to walk you through one of my n8n builds end to end — the fastest way to judge a builder is to watch one explain their own system.

Ugochukwu Okoronkwo ugochukwuokoronkwo01@gmail.com · ugo-landing.vercel.app · github.com/Hugo0007